This is a selection of articles and issues published by Forced Migration Review (FMR) focusing specifically on return, one of the three ‘durable solutions’. You will find for each article: the title, the author(s), a description or introductory sentences and links to the full issue or article online, most of which are also available in Arabic, French and Spanish.

In addition, we have published other articles which refer to ‘return’ in passing; you can find these by using the search function at www.fmreview.org/search. Since ‘return’ is a frequently used word (and will therefore bring up many results) you may wish to narrow search to ‘voluntary return’, etc. Please note that we have not included articles focusing on deportation or Assisted Voluntary Return.

After clicking on the web link given for an article, use the tabs across the top of the website to access the other language versions of that article.

FMR provides a forum for the regular exchange of practical experience, information and ideas between researchers, policymakers, practitioners, and refugees and internally displaced people. All back issues are online at www.fmreview.org. To request FMR email alerts or print copies, please visit www.fmreview.org/request.

Full issues

Dayton +20: Bosnia and Herzegovina twenty years on from the Dayton Peace Agreement
FMR 50, September 2015
FMR 50 examines the case of people who were displaced from and within Bosnia and Herzegovina as a result of the 1992–95 war, and reflects on the lessons that may be drawn from the successes and failures of the Agreement. Many of the articles focus on aspects relating to return.
www.fmreview.org/dayton20

Return to peace
FMR 11, October 2011
The ten articles in the feature theme address a range of aspects relating to return, including the relationship between several concepts of truth, justice and reconciliation; women’s role in peace and in particular in Rwanda and the Balkans; and return and reconciliation in Bosnia and Herzegovina and in Cambodia.
www.fmreview.org/return-to-peace

Home for Good?
FMR 21, September 2004
This FMR discusses some of the challenges that displaced people face when making their decision to return, and highlights some of the strategies employed by authorities and agencies to ensure that return occurs in safety and dignity and that reintegration and recovery are sustainable.
www.fmreview.org/return-reintegration

Going home: land and property issues
FMR 7, April 2000
The eight articles in this issue illustrate the complexity, difficulty and controversy involved in ensuring that those who have a right to return to their original homes are actually allowed to do so.

Articles

Property restitution in post-conflict Syria
Martin Clutterbuck [2018]
Although restitution of property should underpin any post-conflict agreement, in Syria this will be complex. Adherence to the Pinheiro Principles will be critical.

Balancing the rights of displaced, returning and remaining populations: learning from Iraq
Nadia Siddiqui [2018]
The return of some 3.1 million IDPs in Iraq to their places of origin is seen as a benchmark of success in the aftermath of the recent civil war. However, the situation is complex, with critical questions related to mitigating competing rights and protection needs.
When is return voluntary? Conditions of asylum in Lebanon
Amy Keith and Nour Shawaf [2018]
The decision of Syrian refugees in Lebanon to return to Syria must not be based on a deteriorating quality of asylum that creates physical, social and material pressures on decisions to return.
www.fmreview.org/syria2018/keith-shawaf

Perspectives on the return of Syrian refugees
Leila Vignal [2018]
Discussions about the imminent return of large numbers of Syrian refugees are premature.
www.fmreview.org/syria2018/vignal

Repatriation and solutions in stabilisation contexts
Giulio Morello [2016]
So-called stabilisation contexts are risky for repatriation and therefore it is especially important to maintain the legal and practical difference between mandatory and voluntary repatriation.
www.fmreview.org/solutions/morello

Northern Uganda: protection in displacement, protection on return
Denise Dunovant [2016]
In the absence of international or state assistance and protection, community members in northern Uganda stepped in to fill this vacuum both during displacement and throughout the return process.
www.fmreview.org/community-protection/dunovant

Peace in Colombia and solutions for its displaced people
Martin Gottwald [2016]
With the prospect of peace comes the need to find solutions for those displaced during 50 years of fighting. Solutions will not come without comprehensive attention to the factors affecting IDPs and refugees.
www.fmreview.org/destination-europe/rais

European Union readmission agreements
Mehdi Rais [2016]
The use of readmission agreements has prompted a debate on their compliance with international law, in particular the provisions on protection for refugees and asylum seekers.
www.fmreview.org/destination-europe/rais

Returning from Iran
Armando Geller and Maciej M Latek [2014]
Understanding the factors that have an impact on refugee decision making about return and people’s ability to reintegrate following return is critical in planning appropriate pre- and post-return programmes.
www.fmreview.org/afghanistan/geller-latek

Reframing solutions for Afghan refugees
Dan Tyler [2014]
Regional programming and advocacy in relation to Afghan refugees should be framed around supporting and responding to, rather than ‘solving’, protracted displacement.
www.fmreview.org/afghanistan/tyler

Afghan returnees as actors of change?
Mariève van Houte [2014]
Afghan returnees from industrialised countries are expected to contribute to development and peace building in Afghanistan. However, which category of returnee is expected to bring what kind of change often remains under-defined.
www.fmreview.org/afghanistan/vanhoute

The changing nature of return migration to Afghanistan
Katie Kuschminder, Melissa Siegel and Nassim Majidi [2014]
Donors and practitioners need to adapt to a changing landscape of migration and return migration in their efforts to target Afghans most in need of assistance.
www.fmreview.org/afghanistan/kuschminder-siegel-majidi

Anchoring return: the role of the Solutions Strategy
Pierfrancesco Maria Natta [2014]
Providing a minimum standard of living and livelihood opportunities to help anchor those who have returned is critical for the future stability and security of Afghanistan.
www.fmreview.org/afghanistan/natta

Preventing re-displacement through genuine reintegration in Burundi
Lucy Hovil [2012]
Displacement is often part of a cyclical process of conflict and displacement. Preventing displacement, therefore, is not only about preventing new displacement but about ensuring that people do not get re-displaced.
www.fmreview.org/preventing/hovil

The bittersweet return home
Asmita Naik and Frank Laczko [2012]
Migrants left Libya in haste and in fear for their lives. Possessions and valuables were abandoned in the rush to leave. A rapid international response saved lives and facilitated the return home but a premature return may have some unwelcome repercussions.
www.fmreview.org/north-africa/naik-laczko

The Colombian guerrilla, forced displacement and return
David James Cantor [2011]
Colombia provides an instructive case-study of the relationship between non-state armed groups and the forced displacement – and return – of civilian populations.
www.fmreview.org/non-state/Cantor

Voluntary repatriation and the participation of Mauritanian refugees
Leonora MacEwen [2010]
The conditions put forward by Mauritanian refugees for a successful voluntary repatriation included “a full and real inclusion of their interests in each step of the process”.
www.fmreview.org/urban-displacement/macewen

Foundations for repatriation and peace in DRC
Vanessa Noël Brown [2010]
Parties to the protracted Congolese conflict have long promoted fear of ‘the other’ and a thirst for revenge; these attitudes must be addressed if peace is to have a chance.
www.fmreview.org/DRCongo/brown.htm
Land and property disputes impeding return and reintegration
Oumar Sylla [2010]
A survey conducted by UNHCR in 2009 in IDP camps in North Kivu shows that access to land is the second factor after security which prevents people from returning to their zone of origin.
www.fmreview.org/DRCongo/sylla.htm

Refugee return and root causes of conflict
Maria Lange [2010]
Since independence, violent conflicts in eastern DRC have been linked to access to land, affirmation of ethnic identities and competition for political control.
www.fmreview.org/DRCongo/lange.htm

Return in the political context of North Kivu
Fergus Thomas [2010]
Durable returns of IDPs and refugees into some of the most densely populated areas in eastern DRC are never going to be a simple exercise.
www.fmreview.org/DRCongo/thomas.htm

Cross-border mobility of Iraqi refugees
Géraldine Chatelard [2010]
Far more attention needs to be paid to the circulation of Iraqi refugees across the borders between Iraq and Syria or Jordan. Lack of analysis of this cross-border mobility will be to the detriment of policy planning and the search for durable solutions.
www.fmreview.org/urban-displacement/chatelard

To return or stay?
John Giammatteo [2010]
The views of Sri Lankan refugees in India challenge some of the assumptions inherent in promoting repatriation as the most desirable durable solution to protracted displacement.
www.fmreview.org/disability-and-displacement/giammatteo

Safe and suitable return for women fleeing conflict in Liberia
Victoria Ijeoma Nwogu [2010]
When women migrants return, they can face daunting challenges to re-integration but can also contribute to development and transforming societies.
www.fmreview.org/DRCongo/nwogu.htm

Of tripartites, peace and returns
Steve Hege [2010]
After international agreements covering the return of refugees to Equateur and North Kivu, the challenge is to create local structures that can make the agreements work.
www.fmreview.org/DRCongo/hege.htm

Repatriation to Afghanistan: durable solution or responsibility shifting?
Susanne Schmeidl [2009]
Despite the return of almost five million Afghan refugees to Afghanistan since 2002, about three million still remain abroad. What are their prospects of return? More to the point, what is the prospect of those who have returned remaining in Afghanistan?
www.fmreview.org/protracted/schmeidl

Listening to the experiences of the long-term displaced Dayna Brown and Kathryn Mansfield [2009]
Insights emerging from the Listening Project regarding prolonged displacement were specifically about challenges to returning home, who benefits from international assistance, and security.
www.fmreview.org/protracted/brown-mansfield

Burundi: seven years of refugee return
Andreas Kirchhof [2009]
Since UNHCR started its facilitated return programme in spring 2002, Burundi has had to reintegrate about 10% of its population. Refugee return has taken place mostly to rural areas in border provinces, in a context of widespread poverty, lack of basic infrastructure and scarcity of land.
www.fmreview.org/protracted/kirchhof

Protecting housing rights for IDPs in Sri Lanka
Todd Wassel [2009]
The return and relocation of IDPs in the East of Sri Lanka offer lessons on the critical issues that must be addressed if the housing rights of IDPs in the North are to be respected.
www.fmreview.org/protracted/wassel

Return and re-admission in states’ migration policies
Jean-Pierre Cassarino [2009]
The role of the state in protecting its citizens and in defending their rights and privileges has become closely intertwined with its capacity to secure its borders and regulate migration flows.
www.fmreview.org/statelessness/cassarino

Landmines: reason for flight, obstacle to return
Yeshua Moser-Puangsuan [2008]
Burma/Myanmar has suffered from two decades of mine warfare by both the State Peace and Development Council and ethnic-based insurgents. There are no humanitarian demining programmes within the country.
www.fmreview.org/burma/moser-puangsuan

New housing, land and property restitution rights
Scott Leckie [2006]
The UN’s Pinheiro Principles represent the first consolidated global standard on the housing, land and property restitution rights of displaced people.
www.fmreview.org/peopletrafficking/leckie

The right to return: IDPs in Aceh
Eva-Lotta E Hedman [2006]
Political changes are underway in Aceh but only a small fraction of those displaced by the December 2004 tsunami or by earlier conflict with insurgents have returned home.
www.fmreview.org/peopletrafficking/hedman

Uncertain return to southern Sudan
Graham Wood and Jake Phelan [2006]
The return of Sudanese refugees who arrive with very little inevitably compounds the poverty of their hosts. Without greater sensitivity, aid could exacerbate deep divisions.
www.fmreview.org/peopletrafficking/wood-phelan
Europe and the rebuilding of Somalia
Kithure Kindiki [2005]
As Somalia stumbles towards peace, should Europe assist in refugee repatriation and reconstruction?
www.fmreview.org/europe/kindiki

The great land theft
Scott Leckie [2005]
If housing, land and property rights are put at the heart of a post-disaster plan – rather than cast aside as too complicated or expensive – the chances are that it will succeed. If these rights are ignored or, more ominously, systematically violated, not only will rights be abused but also reconstruction will fail.
www.fmreview.org/tsunami/leckie

IDPs in the Balkans – the challenges of sustainable return
Brookings-Bern Project on Internal Displacement [2005]
By 2005, much has been achieved in enabling persons displaced in the 1990s to return to their original places of residence in Croatia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, and Serbia and Montenegro, including Kosovo. A large number of property disputes have been resolved and houses and apartments have been repossessed by, or at least re-allocated to, their previous owners.
www.fmreview.org/sudan/brookings

The reality of return: IDPs in Darfur
Mathijs Le Rutte [2005]
Despite continuing insecurity, IDPs in Darfur are starting to return home. UNHCR and other agencies involved in their assistance and protection must ensure that the principles of voluntariness, safety and dignity are adhered to.
www.fmreview.org/sudan/lerutte

Sustainable IDP/refugee return depends on collaborative approach
Sajjad Malik [2005]
The Livelihoods and Social Protection cluster of the Joint Assessment Mission forms the basis of the plan for the return and reintegration of some 6.7 million Sudanese by 2011. Success will depend on commitment to the Comprehensive Peace Process and sustained international support.
www.fmreview.org/sudan/malik

Assisting the return of displaced Dinka Bor
Paul Murphy [2005]
The issues involved in supporting the return of internally displaced Dinka Bor communities highlight the complex, and often ignored, challenges of addressing the consequences of South-South conflict.
www.fmreview.org/sudan/murphy

Peace in the Middle East: getting real on the issue of Palestinian refugee property
Scott Leckie [2003]
Why are Palestinian refugees treated so systematically differently from all of the world’s other refugee groups when it comes to return and the restoration of housing and property rights?
www.fmreview.org/african-displacement/leckie

Why did they return? The mass return to Afghanistan from Pakistan and Iran
Peter Marsden [2003]
Over the spring and summer of 2002, Afghanistan received a reported 1.8 million refugees returning from Pakistan and Iran. This was widely perceived as a vote of confidence in the new Afghan government but studies suggested rather that the reasons for return were far more complex and that refugees had returned to a situation which could barely sustain them.
www.fmreview.org/african-displacement/marsden

Return to Prijedor: politics and UNHCR
Ayaki Ito [2001]
As Yugoslavia disintegrated, the town of Prijedor in north-west Bosnia and Herzegovina witnessed one of the worst examples of ethnic cleansing during the 1992–1995 war.
www.fmreview.org/unhcr-convention-50/ito

Myth and reality: the return of Kosovan Albanians
Peter Marsden [1999]
In 1999 there were concerns over potentially premature returns of refugees after the signing of the NATO–Yugoslav peace agreement, and the impact on the remaining refugees and their environment.
www.fmreview.org/kosovo/marsden